IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of S. E. Chenault, who passed away November 23, 1960.
Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall.
You had a kindly word for each And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart,
That loved us well and true,
Oh, bitter was the trial to part From one so good as you.
You are not forgotten loved one Nor will you ever be, as long as life and memory last.
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
Missed by wife, children and grandchildren.

Valley Changing

Took a short week end driving through the Valley of Virginia — from 15 to Gordonsville, then over Skyline Drive to the Panarama Drive to spend the night at Hotel Dimmon down Route 11 to Lexington home by Route 60. This is a nice way to drive if you want a week end full of scenery.

The effect of dry weather last summer is noticeable all along this route. Pastures showed the lack of rain, and looked better in the valley than on top of the mountains.

The valley has moved into the Valley, by and large around Harrisonburg. New motels and smokestacks are changing the face of life in that section of Virginia.

The valley is going all out for tourist trade also. Any number of motels, (closed for the winter) brand new and walking dot Route 11. Some of the motels with the big mansions have been converted to dude ranches, with horse back riding, trap shooting and what were impressed with the comfort — but there it was. Every motel had a swimming pool. What we remember as the great and beautiful Shenandoah Valley seems to us to have changed to the great and industrial Valley beset with tourist attractions. Cheap tourist signs dot the highway on both sides. The Valley has gone money-mad. But with all that there are few more beautiful spots than the Valley of Virginia. The beauty of the meadows reaching into the massive mountains, the work of nature can still be enjoyed regardless of man's efforts to commercialize.

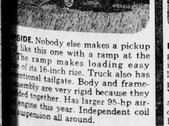
Much of Route 11 is four-lane and some portions of Interstate 84 have been built, especially on the by-passes.

In 70 miles on Route 11 we did not see half as many trucks as can be counted any time within an hour on Route 360 passing any given point. Route 360 is a two lane road much of the way-and a poor two-lane highway at that. We do believe that Southside and Eastern Virginia should put enough pressure on the powers that be to have four lane highways on Route 460 from Norfolk to Roanoke and 360 from Richmond to South Boston given priority. The longer we wait to start the ball rolling the longer it will be before necessary allotments are made for these improvements.

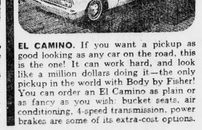
CHEVROLET
Which type Chevrolet pickup do you need?
Chevrolet now makes four different types, each with its own distinct advantages. Whichever one you buy will be a lot more truck than your money bought the last time!

SIDE. Based on sales, the best liked in the world. Outstanding feature is edge body extending clear out over fenders. Two body sizes. Two wheel-Best riding truck, by far, with coil all around and independent front end. Cab and body have double-construction. Chevrolet Fleetside—all-around use.

STEPSIDE. Has flat interior body walls and convenient side steps between cab and rear fenders. Comes in same two sizes as the Fleetside plus one bigger size. Big model has heavier frame, 4-speed transmission and leaf-spring rear suspension for maximum payloads. Standard engine is 230-cu.-in. Six. A 292 Six or 283 V-8 is available at extra cost.



SIDE. Nobody else makes a pickup like this one with a ramp at the The ramp makes loading easy of its 16-inch rise. Truck also has sional tailgate. Body and frame-sembly are very rigid because they ded together. Has larger 95-hp air-engine this year. Independent coil suspension all around.



EL CAMINO. If you want a pickup as good looking as any car on the road, this is the one! It can work hard, and look like a million dollars doing it—the only pickup in the world with Body by Fisher! You can order an El Camino as plain or as fancy as you wish: bucket seats, air conditioning, 4-speed transmission, power brakes are some of its extra-cost options.

Inner Power

Lesson for November 24, 1963

Everyone who observes people with a little penetration of insight, knows the difference between lives that have inner power and lives that crumple and may even shatter like a mirrored rocket, for lack of some inner power which more effective lives possess. To put it in railroad language, some people are like locomotives, running on their own power, power generated on board, so to speak. Other people are like freight cars — they will move, but only if pushed.

What is the secret of inner power?

First-Level Motives

The three-honed name for what drives men, gently or strongly as it may be, is motivation, is Motive. Some persons are without motive entirely. They see no reason for their existence, they do not march, they dawdle, they drift. They are suggestible, they have no inner consistency. They follow the crowd, they never lead it. Other persons are strong in a wrong-headed way, wrong-hearted too. They are set into action by wrong motives, such as pride, the desire for pleasure, flattery, or greed. Above such men in the scale of character are others moved by what we can call Christian motives at the first level, a level not too difficult to reach. Putting several factors together, Christians, are motivated by the simple wish to be thought well of. "How'm I doing?" is a fair question, one that ought to be asked. Only let's make sure we ask it of the right people. Saint Paul, who holds high place on the roster of world-Christians, certainly wanted both God and men to think well of him. "What we are (he meant what I am) is known to God, and I hope also to your conscience." The judgment of God and the judgment of the Christian conscience — these were both important to Paul. He mentions them in the same breath in II Cor. 5:11. Not that he thought as much of the approval of men as he did of the approval of God; but he was eager to have both. What people think of you is important, and above all it is God's approval that comes first.

For Him

Good as this is, it is not top-flight Christian living. The desire to keep one's record clean will go a long way; but it will not take us as far as some other motives. For the pattern of the Christian life, the dedicated life, is not mainly a pattern of orders - and - obedience. For some people this is all there is to Christianity. "God tells me what to do and I do it." But there is a higher motive than simple blind obedience to the word of command. It is the motive of love. Paul does not use the word "love" in his letters very often, yet it comes out at crucial points. Paul says "the love of Christ controls us."

Paul puts this another way without using the word "love" at all. He speaks of Christian believers as living no longer for themselves "but for Him who for their sakes died." We go a long way farther for one we admire and love, than we will for orders, no matter what penalty may be attached. Christian life, in short, is not at its best when it is not lived by rote or by rule, but when the rote and the rule, when they must be, come from love for One who loved us first. The Christian life, in short, is at its best when it is motivated by gratitude to the One who died for all.

The Ministry of Reconciliation

God is not man's enemy. God is for us. (This does not mean that God smiles on our bit of foolishness or sin we can think of!) If that sounds familiar to the Christian reader, it was not familiar when Paul discovered it. Many outside the church and inside too need to discover it afresh. The feeling, the conviction, that God for some reason "He will not let me go nor let me down or let me off," the discovery that His intentions for me go beyond my own imaginings — this can be the most powerful inner drive known to man. Every person who accepts the undeserved mercy of God has a right to confidence in the support of God. In this assurance is unfailing inner power.

Dear Sir:

Reminding people to be careful with their cigarettes, matches, camp fires is a never ending job. Human beings are forgetful — even those with the best intentions. Will you once again help distribute Smokey Bear forest fire prevention calendars which help serve as a reminder to be careful with fire.

The combination of severe drought conditions and careless people created a shameful forest fire record for 1963. We know you share with us the desire to improve our record for 1964.

Sincerely yours,
George W. Dean, State Forester

Pastor Speaks

A True Case Of Thanksgiving

Dr. Luke, the Physician and author of the Book which bears his name in the New Testment, records that ten people were cleansed of leprosy, but only one came back to say "thank you". Our Lord recognized this one and made him "whole", Then he pathetically added, "but where are the nine?" (Luke 17:-17)

What is true Thanksgiving? In what does it find its expression? How can one know that he is grateful? These questions seek an answer.

Someone has succinctly remarked that only "thinkful people are thankful people". Perhaps it's at this point we begin to see the primary reason for thanksgiving. The leper came to say "thank you" for he had experienced a blessing of being healed. He had been led to see th significance of the experience.

Perhaps we would do well to pause and say "Thank you" to our medical world. Our life span has been extended from 15 to 35 years because of their dedication and untiring service. Jesus of their children have the chicken pox.

Our community on Thanksgiving Day, November 28th at 9 a. m. will observe a special Thanksgiving Day service at Liberty Baptist Church. Why not join with others in a time of "giving thanks unto the Lord!" On Thanksgiving day let each of us take stock to ascertain the true basis of our being grateful. Let us examine those feelings or our hearts, as we seek to truly say: "Thank you Lord for saving my soul;
Thank you Lord for making me whole".
